

HOW DO QUIZZES WORK IN DISCORD?

1. Join the voice channel (bottom left). That's where every participants, spectators, QuizMaster scorers - everyone who needs to hear the question will be at.
2. QuizMaster displays the question slide in the #questions channel.
3. Teams can discuss in your respective #team channels.
4. Like usual quiz, QuizMaster will give a decent time before closing the pounces

5. To confirm pounce, you can type the answer and tag QMr (QM is a role given to the QuizMaster, so you don't need to type his name). Thus the QuizMaster can see your answer.

E.g. while pouncing @QuizMaster CET,Sreekaryam if CET and Sreekaryam are 2 parts of the questions answer

(If it's a 2 part question, make sure you mention both parts in the same message, separated by comma or otherwise)

After pouncing, one person from the team is requested to go to the #general channel and notify "Team N has pounced"

6. Bounces like usual. Requesting all participants to turn your mics off unless its your turn to answer. Its suggested that the team denote a spokesperson (and not all team members shouting out simultaneously)
7. Bounces like usual. If you're wrong and it passes on, please turn off your mic right then. And the next team's spoke person turn on the mic and start speaking.
8. QuizMaster will display the answer slide in the #questions channel itself after each question.
9. If you still have any doubts left we'll sort it out once the quiz begins.

Note: If the number of registrations exceeds 15, we will be conducting prelims through the same platform.
